FUND UPDATE

During April 2018, ALF's Net Asset Value per share decreased by 10.2% or 4.25 cents per share. There were two major contributors to the decline:

1. Approximately 7.2% of the decline was a result of the $4.4mm (3 cents per share) distribution to shareholders as announced on 6 April 2018. The additional 3 cents brings the total distributions for the Company over the last 18 months to $0.16 cents.
2. The balance of the decline of approximately 1.25 cents per share was due to the depreciation of the Company's Vision holdings which decreased due to BRL depreciation versus the USD (-5.7% in the month) caused by political uncertainty in that country.

There were no material movements in the Company's other fund investments as well as no material cash movements for the period.

Brazil, which represents ~60% of ALF's geographic portfolio allocation, is having a difficult year from a macro economic and political perspective. The country is also suffering a slowdown in GDP growth and a currency that has weakened almost 14% vs. the USD in 2018. This has made the already difficult task of novating FCVS receipts into Government debt even more onerous for Vision management. Vision is having monthly meetings with the Brazilian federal savings bank Caixa and the other FCVS holders in order to come to an agreement on how to re-start the novation process, which has been on hold for many months. Achieving a potential agreement is a vital first step in a legal and bureaucratic deadlock that is impeding any progress on the monetisation of the receipts. Warana has re-emphasized the desire for Vision to push for an agreement in the short to medium term and is working on a suggested new time based manager incentive plan if liquidity is generated for shareholders.

ALF VALUATION METHODOLOGY

ALF is invested in approximately 25 illiquid third party funds. The quality of assets and information provided by these funds varies. While many funds provide regular net asset value estimates of their portfolio, it is Warana's experience that these valuations can be optimistic and it is generally expected that these type of funds trade at a discount to these valuations in the secondary market (where observable). Some of the funds in the investment portfolio are also delinquent in providing their valuation estimates and/or have not had their accounts audited in a regular timeframe. As such, Warana believes it is appropriate to review the valuations provided by the underlying funds and apply provisions where appropriate. Unfortunately, the secondary market for fund interests is not deep, is characterized by many small transactions and pricing information is not particularly transparent. Price points can also be skewed adversely through the activity of one off highly motivated sellers. As such, Warana can not readily apply a 'mark to secondary bid' valuation approach due to a lack of quality independent third party information.

Warana has developed a provisioning process to evaluate the portfolio as objectively as possible by taking into account the quality of the information received from the underlying funds, their valuation processes, geographical locations and risks associated with the assets. Where possible, this analysis is then checked against observable secondary market activity. Provisions are applied based on the following criteria:

1. Where a manager, liquidator or other authorized party has advised that they expect a recovery materially less than the stated net asset value, the conservative end of this range is applied as a provision to the fund.

Where no third-party guidance is received, Warana applies provisions of 10% – 50% across each of the following criteria cumulatively:

2. If the net asset value is delinquent and/or not provided within the time frame previously advised to investors, a provision is applied.
3. If a third-party liquidator (or similar) has been appointed, an incremental discount is applied and if this party has not made progress on the fund in a reasonable time frame, this discount may be increased.
4. Warana seeks to receive bottom up information on the remaining assets in each of the funds. Because these funds are run by third parties, it is not always simple to get the full amount of information desired. An incremental discount is applied if the additional asset level information desired has not been received.
5. If fund audited financial statements are late or qualified, a discount is applied, which increases if an audit has not been completed for several years.
6. It is expected that funds have third party administrators/valuation agents. Should Warana not be able to determine whether such a group is still involved, an incremental discount is applied.
7. An additional discount is applied relating to the perceived incremental geographic, political or currency related risk of the asset or manager.
8. It is common for legacy illiquid funds to be involved in some type of litigation or have issues with key regulators. An incremental discount is applied depending on the severity of the litigation or investigation.
9. Should the fund or assets still have significant leverage an incremental discount is applied.

Warana then gathers the cumulative discounts applied in steps 1 through 9 and seeks to compare the proposed provision against what is observable in the secondary market. The following incremental test is applied.

10. If Warana is aware of a reliable third party, completed secondary market price that is:
 - a. Within the last 6 months: AND
 - b. At a discount to the manager provided net asset value of greater than 50% discount; AND
 - c. The price is more than 25% different to Warana's price calculated by applying 1 through 9, then an extra provision is applied to equate the provision levels to the secondary market value.
