Performance Update

During the month of December 2016, ALF’s Net Asset Value per share rose by 1.26%, primarily driven by strength of the Brazilian real against the US dollar, which boosted our Vision holdings by approximately 3.8% during the month. Other portfolio movements were muted and slightly negative in aggregate. Of note, a smaller holding announced a redemption during the month which boosted cash by approximately $200,000 when it settled after month end.

During the month, we participated in a recapitalization of the Vision FCVS RJ Fund, which had run out of cash while pursuing its claims. While we previously declined to participate in a similar recapitalization of the Vision FCVS PB Fund, we elected to participate in our pro-rata share of this offering to ensure that no lender had a controlling stake in the lending entity.
